“We’re the Eco Boys and Girls!

“Let’s Take Care Of Each Other & Our Planet & Inspire A Generation of Conscientious Leaders & Problem Solvers”
MISSION

Engage youth and families around the world to be aware of, involved with and connected to each other and the earth and to empower them to take ownership of our planet, learn about the environment and explore creative new ways to live in harmony.

“By introducing students to environmental issues at an early age, the Eco Boys and Girls books build interest in science, technology, engineering and math - subjects that will prepare our young people to address critical challenges in the future.”

- National Education Association President, Dennis Van Roekel
HISTORY HIGHLIGHTS

Eco Boys and Girls launched Earth Week 2010 at the Liberty Science Center where the 5 animated characters were individually introduced on large plasma screens as multimedia exhibits and guides to LSC’s exhibits for youth and families. Animated Eco Boys and Girls short film introduced the characters as pro environmental and STEAM education advocates for young children and the global community.

The National Education Association selected EBAG as icons for Environmental & STEM Education, as well as icons for their Green Across America Programs & offers Eco Boys and Girls Earth Week Online Curriculum welcoming the 5 EBAG characters as pro environmental advocates to their 4 million members.

Former Environmental Protection Agency’s President, Lisa Jackson, addressed in a PSA, youth and parents everywhere to “join in with the Eco Boys and Girls and with Ernie Earth, Sammy Sun, Ray Recycle in helping keep America clean, green and healthy”.

The Association of Science and Technology Centers (ASTC) featured EBAG characters as science “eco” characters poised to inspire the next generation of “eco” leaders to their global audience of science and technology professionals and members.

United Nations Environment Program’s, Dr. Noel Brown, honored the Eco Boys and Girls as the next generation of eco heroes and the official “Millennium Kids”.
